

HARD WORK AT YALE

Varsity Scrimmages with Freshmen and Scrubs.

HAVE SECRET SIGNAL DRILL

Forward Pass and On-side Kick Is Tried with but Indifferent Success and Team Returns to Straight Football, Which Style of Play Will Be Used in the Game Saturday.

New Haven, Nov. 12.—Yale's style of play against Princeton will be substantially the same as that used in the Brown game, with the exception that the one or two trick plays may be introduced.

Several times the forward pass and on-side kick were tried by the first eleven, but the passing was generally unsatisfactory, and the coaches directed the team to return to straight football. By this the most substantial gains of the scrimmages were made. The freshmen, with their strong and husky line, gave the varsity quite a rub, Co scoring the only touchdown just as the 1911 team was about to be called off.

Team in Good Condition.

Trainer John Jack and Capt. Bligh find much satisfaction in the fact that, were the game to-morrow, every man on the Eli's squad would be physically fit. Much in the way of accident can happen in a few days, but it is remarkable that not a single man on the squad is at present out of color.

Wheaton's knee is not entirely well, but he fills a half-back position with plenty of snap. He is unable to do any drop kicking, however, which weakens the team in this department of the game.

TIGER SCRUBS STRONG.

Princeton Varsity Is Scored on Twice by Substitutes.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12.—The Tigers are being rushed like the wind, in spite of their reported poor physical condition, because many weak points cropped out in the Amherst game that must be polished off in order that Princeton can meet the play of the Eli's.

Altogether the work this afternoon was not the kind that brings Yale victories home. The husky scrubs who are fresh and lively, gave the varsity more than the latter could comfortably handle. During two thirty-minute halves, the second bunch tallied twice, once by straight line plunging and again on a series of long forward passes. McCrohan had things pretty much his own way, hurling himself against the opposing line, in a way to clear great openings.

The play consisted mainly in close in-line formations and Harlan employed his kicking very sparingly. All the regulars started the scrimmage but were taken out before it was over. A shift in the line was tried again to-day. The tackles and guards were swapped about several times, though nothing definite was decided on.

Harlan practiced drop kicking for quite a while this afternoon, and a couple of old timers watched his performances. It is on this chap that Princetonians are placing considerable confidence.

MAY TRANSFER GAME.

Tech High and Georgetown Preps Undecided About Grounds.

The managers of the Georgetown Prep and Technical High teams will meet this afternoon to decide definitely where the game for District interscholastic championship will be played.

When the contest was first suggested it was expected that it would be decided at National Park, but as no satisfactory agreement has been made for the grounds, the game may be transferred to Georgetown field. All other details have been arranged.

The practice of the Tech squad has been transferred to Van Ness Park, where the school boys will probably line up against the George Washington reserves before the big game. The preps have a fifteen-minute scrimmage yesterday with the Georgetown varsity.

G. W. U. PROGRESSING.

Coch Nelson Expects Hatchedites to Give V. P. L. a Hard Battle.

With the aid of four or lights, advantageously situated at Van Ness Park, the George Washington squad was able to practice until quite late yesterday evening, a hard scrimmage of thirty minutes' duration being indulged in.

The varsity is approaching more nearly to Coach Nelson's idea of what a team should be, and he expects that a team to give Virginia Tech a hard battle next Saturday, when the team goes to Blackburg. Tullie, who was tried out at guard in the practice, made a favorable impression, and it may be that he will be shifted to that position.

STANLEY TITUS ELOPES.

Former George Washington Baseball Captain Married in Baltimore.

Quite a stir in college circles was created yesterday when it became known that Dr. Stanley H. Titus, last year's captain of George Washington University baseball team, and Miss Milvian B. Stoddard, who was tried out at guard in the practice, made a favorable impression, and it may be that he will be shifted to that position.

Dr. Titus came to Washington from Spokane, Wash., two years ago to take up the study of medicine at Georgetown. After studying for two years at that institution, where he was considered the star pitcher of the baseball squad, he entered George Washington University, and from here he graduated last spring.

It is rumored that when Georgetown and George Washington baseball teams met in their annual game last spring Capt. Titus first met the fair maiden that was to play so important a part in his career.

Miss Stoddard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Stoddard, of this city. She is well known in musical circles. Dr. Titus left for the West immediately after the ceremony to take up the practice of his profession, his bride returning to her parents' home. Their future home will be in Spokane, Wash.

Cornell After Swarthmore.

Ithaca, Nov. 12.—That the Cornell coaches appreciate that Swarthmore will prove no mean antagonist was evidenced to-day when they brought out the full varsity team for practice. With the exception of Van Orman and Earle, the entire varsity got into the work. Earle will be given a rest for some time and Mow will take his place at left half back. Harris, who has substituted for Van Orman for some time, will play Van Orman in the game, although the coaches hope to get Van Orman into condition for the Pennsylvania game. All the rest of the team was in a high-class condition and ran through a hard single practice.

WENDELL BACK IN GAME.

Harvard's Star Half Back Reinstated by the Faculty.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12.—Harvard football affairs took on a more favorable aspect to-day when it was announced that Jack Wendell, Harvard's best half back, had been reinstated to good standing in his college work, and would play in the Dartmouth game on Saturday.

The open work consisted of a 35-minute scrimmage against the second team, which the varsity won by four touchdowns. The work was at times brilliant, but lacked consistency, and in the main was marked by the same faults which have marred Harvard's prospects throughout the season.

Two bits of play stood out. The first touchdown came as the result of a long run by Wendell around right end, who passed the ball to Rand just as he was being tackled, the latter carrying the ball 20 yards further for a touchdown. The other was a long run which Wendell made breaking through a tackle near the side lines and by fast running and clever dodging, working his way 45 yards for a touchdown.

Starr was tried out at the end on the second team, and made some pretty tackles down the field on kicks. All the varsity men took part in the line-up.

INTERIOR VS. NAVY.

Play Second Round of Departmental Chess Tourney.

The second round of the team championship chess tournament is scheduled to be played at the Chess Club this evening.

Much interest is manifested in the meeting of Government Printing Office and Agriculture, both having won in the first round, when the printers created a mild sensation by defeating the Interior team, which is champion of the league. The latter will take on the Navy to-night, and may be expected to show some of their last season's form.

Treasury will fight it out with Commerce and Labor. The former made a strong showing against Navy last week, so that Commerce and Labor will have to work hard to break into the won column. The results of the first round played Wednesday night are as follows:

Gov't Printing Office	Interior
Walker	1
McCombs	0
Graham	1
Agnew	0
Benjamin	0
Huntington	0
Roberts	0
Murray	0
Treasury	0
Halden	0
Tipper	0

PLAY BALTIMORE Y. M. C. A.

Corcoran Cadets Meet West Branch Basketball Team To-night.

The Corcoran Cadet basketball team will play the West Branch Y. M. C. A. team, of Baltimore, to-night, at the National Guard Armory.

The West Branch team is one of the strongest in the Monumental City, and a good game should result. Tom McGrew will referee the contest, which will start at 8:30 o'clock. The Corcorans will line up as follows: Givannoni, left forward; Leach, right forward; Clark, center; Cassara, right guard; Coleman, left guard. There will be dancing after the game.

HARD WORK AT GEORGETOWN

Coaches Put the Varsity Through Long, Hard Practice.

Larkin Attends to the Ends and Work Closes with Scrimmage with the Georgetown Preps.

For two hours yesterday afternoon the Georgetown squad was given the hardest sort of practice for the Virginia game.

Although it was reported that secret practice was to be inaugurated, the work was open, and about 200 students followed the squad in its work.

"Bunny" Larkin, the former half back, made his first appearance and devoted most of his time coaching the ends. Dr. Reilly had the back field in hand, and after an hour's signal drill the team opposed the Georgetown Preps in order to try out some new plays in scrimmaging. The varsity was allowed to keep the Redskins down, and for fifteen minutes drop kicking was indulged in. A hard scrimmage is scheduled for to-day.

The first of a series of mass meetings to arouse interest in the university Saturday's game will be held this evening at the law school building.

SNOW AT CHARLOTTESVILLE.

Virginia Squad Has Poor Practice on Slippery Field.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 12.—The practice of Virginia's football squad to-day was unsatisfactory, both to the players and coaches. The gridiron was in such a wretched condition, due to a mixture of rain, sleet, and snow, that the men could not do justice to themselves. There was also a constant fear that a slide in the mud might result in injury.

The entire squad trotted on the field at 4 o'clock, in a snowstorm, and immediately engaged in signal drill, which lasted for half an hour. Coaches Johnson and Paul gave the linemen some individual instructions, and then the varsity and scrub teams lined up for a scrimmage, which lasted nearly an hour. The showing made by the varsity on the defensive was much better than yesterday. Time and again the scrub backs were thrown for a loss on the line.

Hume, the former Woodbury star, was given a trial in the varsity back field, and will probably be in the line-up Saturday. He is a good punter and drop-kicker. Yancey, the plunging full back from Randolph-Macon, was conspicuous by his absence to-day.

De Saules, who came down Saturday to assist in coaching the team until the Georgetown game, was forced to return to New York last night, much to the regret of the college. He would have rendered the eleven much valuable assistance this week. Some former Virginia players have been wired for to assist Head Coach Johnson. Some of them are expected to-morrow.

Penn Mass to Play Holy Cross.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 12.—Holy Cross and University of Pennsylvania, after a lapse of six years, will resume their relationship in the spring. On its Southern trip Holy Cross will cross bats with the U. of P. at Philadelphia on either April 10 or 11. Formerly the meeting of the two teams here was the biggest attraction of the local team, the games being scheduled for June on Penn's Eastern trip. This will be Holy Cross' first appearance in Philadelphia in baseball.

MICHIGAN IS READY

Wolverines Are Determined to Win from Penn.

EAST AND WEST TO BATTLE

Yost and His Pupils Have the Support of Even Their Western Rivals in Game Which Means Whether Relations Between Two Universities Will Remain the Same.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—A few more days, a little celebration or weeping, as the case may be, and the curtain will fall on Michigan's football season for 1907.

With the Pennsylvania game Saturday will end Yost's seventh year as coach of Michigan football, and, too, with it will come either recognition of Michigan by the East, or the slipping—temporarily, at least—out of sight of the Wolverines, so far as football is concerned. If Pennsylvania succeeds in walloping Michigan November 16 for the second successive time, it is extremely unlikely that a football contract will be renewed, as a further alliance would not be desirable to either school. In a statement made the other day, Director Charles Baird informed that if Pennsylvania won from Michigan this year the Wolverines would not have a place on the Quaker schedule for 1908.

Ann Arbor is ready for the greatest game in her history. Greater than the championship struggles with Chicago, Minnesota, and Wisconsin of former years will be the clash with Pennsylvania's heroes next Saturday.

East vs. West.

The struggle is an intersectional one, and while Pennsylvania will champion the cause of the East, Michigan will go into the game with the moral support of all the Western colleges—even Chicago and Minnesota, her bitterest rivals, praying for a Wolverine victory for the first time. As to the crowd, the figures already show that it will be a record-breaking attendance that files through the fourteen entrances to New Ferry field next Saturday.

The first two days of the seat sale saw more than 13,000 pasteboards passed out, and unless Charles Baird is badly mistaken, close to 3,000 will witness the game of the year on the greatest athletic field in America.

Michigan thinks she can win. Not that Michigan looks at her games with distorted vision; for last year Michigan knew that she had little chance to win from Penn as soon as Joe Curtis was declared down and out by the fates that let him participate in the last three minutes of the varsity-alumni game. This year it is different. The backfield is little, if any, stronger than last year, although Wascum is at quarter, he so much better than Workman as to make up for the loss of Garrels at full back.

Forwards Are Strong.

There is no comparison of the line of the 1906 team and the one which will be called upon to withstand the assault of the heavy Pennsylvania backfield. Even if no other changes had been made, the fact that the forwards have been bolstered up this year by the addition of Rheimschids and Schulz would be justification for the claim that the line is fully twice as strong as last year.

But he never did, even when his eleven were in the habit of going into a championship struggle and rolling up from 25 to 60 points. What he says is this: "Pennsylvania is strong—much stronger than she is given credit for being. I think that the Quakers have one of the strongest eleven in the East. Despite her defeat at the hands of the Indians, which I still think was largely the result of luck breaking against her in the early part of the game—giving the Indians the very confidence they needed to make it impossible to stop them except by shooting them in the foot—I think the Pennsylvania bunch will win from Cornell, a team which will be remembered, from Princeton. We will have no easy proposition."

Magoffin Is Confident.

Capt. Magoffin is more optimistic than the coast. He is willing to run the risk of living on hamburgers and chop suey the rest of the year to bet his allowance on Michigan's chances.

"Pennsylvania is mighty strong," he said, "but I think we are quite a little better. A victory for us by a margin of 30 points, incredible as it may sound, would not be at all surprising to me."

Frightened by the apparent tendency on the part of the varsity players to loaf in practice, Coach Yost called the team together before the first practice after the return from Nashville, and handed out the most severe lecture of the year. He intimated strongly that unless one or two who have been especially lazy take a big brace their places will be filled with subs, while they grace the sidelines as a reward for their unwillingness to work.

PUNTS AND PASSES.

In Pullen and Erwin, West Point has a wonderful pair of linemen.

Critics are touting Daguerre, of Annapolis, as one of the best ends in America. Yale averages 150 pounds to Princeton's 182; Penn's average is 180, and Michigan's is 183.

Dartmouth has not been beaten this season, and the Green and White team has hopes of beating Harvard.

It is said that some of the big men on the Crimson team keep the sand and fighting spirit of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.

Minnesota expects Capron to score several field goals against Carleton on Saturday. The Redskins may well fear his boot.

Brown is said to have been badly demoralized in the game with Ellis. Even Mayhew, their star half back, failed to play his game.

On form, it would appear that West Point would be the favorite in the game with Annapolis, but form counts for little in these games.

Coach Crane, of Harvard, is now the target for a bombardment from the critics for not preparing a defense for the Indians' forward pass.

Every member of the Penn eleven will enter the game with the unbent Michigan team heavily charged with Mike Murphy's recipe for victory.

Brown, Princeton's right end, who proved a good mate to Wister in the Tiger-Indian game, is showing great speed in the practice at Old Nassau.

Although Virginia has lost Coach De Saules, several graduates have been called to Charlottesville to help round the team into shape for the Georgetown game.

Sam Crane, of the New York Journal, thinks Cornell has the finest football team in America, but he warns them to beware of any let down before playing Penn.

"Pa" Corbin, of Yale, says: "I hope Harvard will get a system and method that will make her really formidable in football, but until she does we must count Princeton as our dearest foe."
